THE ATREVEUM .- This place of amusement was crowded last evening at the beneft of Mr. Selden Irwin; also to witness the performance of Mr. Harry Rainforth in the character of Rip Van Winkle. As we had seen Jefferson's Rip some fifty times we felt unwilling to criticise Mr. Rainforth too closely, or to compare bim with Mr. Jefferson. To say that Rainforth copies Jefferson would be to imply that Jefferson originated the style peculiar to both, which would be unjust, as both closely imitate Mr. Charles Burke in the general features. We are not of those who conclude that only one man can be born to do any given thing well. The Rip Van Winkle of Irving is a plain, improvident dutchman, given to vagabondism, ignorant alike of letters and all social conventionalities, and so far a slave to bere appetite that good resolution raises reser to its indulgence. Rainforth plays the role of the good natured vagabond to the end. Perhaps the best criterion of an actor's merit is the extent to which he disguises his real self in his assumed character, and it may be truthfully said of Bainforth that his most intimate acquaintances could not recognise him in Rip Van Winkle Mr. Rainforth, if an imitator of Mr. Jefferson, is certainty a very successful one, and it would certainly puzzle a critical observer to show wherein his representation of the careless and oblivious Rip fell behind the great original and famous rendition. Mr. and Mrs. Irwin sequitted themselves admirably. This afternoon a matinee, and this evening the Octoroon.

CAIRO, Ills., Dec. 20, 1872. EDITOR BULLETIN: DEAR SIR:—Herewith I hand you bill lading for your inspection for 100 barrels of flour from Mr. D. Hetter, Vienna, Illinois. This is the first car load of flour over the Cairo and Vincennes railroad and will be in to-day.

Yours,
P. CUHL.

We place the above in our columns as the record of an important event in the Cuhl's note not without interest, and from it draw information which may appear in this shape in the columns of THE BULLETIN, issued in the morning of the 20th of December, A. D. 1872, by John H. Oberly, the grand-son of the pres-100,000 subscribers : "The first car load of flour over the Cairo and Vincenne's railroad was received in Cairo on the 20th of December, 1872; and now thousands of barrels are received every day. Yesterday the famous flour dealer, James Hambleton, (whose great-grand-father was the well-known Wm. H. Hambleton), corner of Casey avenue and Thornton street, Twenty-second Ward, formerly the village of Mound City, received a thousand barrelativer this road alone. The movement is commendable, but like everything else that a sleepy town does, is just a little behind the times. There was a tide perhaps in the history of Paducah, which if taken at the flood would have led her on to fortune, but the day of her destiny's over; she is too near Cairo to ever hope to become a large city-Since you have not been sagacious in the past, good neighbor of Paducah, be wise in the future and cultivate the virtue of con-

CARSON, work warranted. 156 Commercial avenue, between Ninth and Tenth streets. -Unfortunate Cairo! Unfortunate BUL-ETIN! We have offended the newspaper of Evansville and the mayor of Evansville pended labor on the sidewalks for the and the people of Evansville. The honorable mayor of that city was not asked to quet, and now the Evansville 'Courier' says that Cairo intended to snub Evansville at that feast of reason, etc. And now the 'Courier' also finds fault with the BULLETIN. The Saturday before the Cairo and Vincennes railroad tanquet, we wrote an item intended for the Sunday morning paper. With others, it was laid over till Tuesday on account of a rush of other matter. The item related to the sending of a consumptive pa per, with his family to Cairo, by the mayor of Evansville. The writing of the article and the fact that, having been crowded out on Saturday night, it would appear on Tuesday, and while his honor, the mayor of Evansville, was the guest of the city, slipped our treacherous memory. It was a little rough on Mayor Butterfield, we admit. We are sorry. We apologise. That he was not asked to make a speech at our banquet, was his misfortune, not his fault. The 'Courier' reporter ignores us in almost as cruel a way. Our unworthy name does not appear once in his account of the banquet. We are cut to the soul. But nevertheless we are willing to do everything in our power to soothe the offended Evansvillians - we hope the sensitive Courier' won't construe the term into an offense against the people of its city; we didn't name the place-we promise here and now, that if the mayor of Evansville sends no more sick paupers to our shores, we will publish no more such items as the one in question. We call this fair and equare all round. What says the Courier?

CONDITION OF THE RIVERS.

The Ohio river at this place is now falling, after having, then 15 inches. A steady decline may be expected in the Ohio river for the was few weeks, and it may be that the themset cold smap has closed it at the appear and, or more properly between Louisville and Oineinnati. The packets from helw report only 41 feet at Point Pleasant, and now that the Ohio is on the decline less water may be expected there. The Mississippi is still full of he vy ice. At the head of still full of he vy ice. At the head of is the shoulest bar.

Special dispatches to THE BULLETIN report the condition of the Ohio and Miseissippi rivers at various places.

BUSINESS AND WEATHER. Business was good yesterday. The evee was so very slippery that it was hard on the horses and oxen, and only light loads could be drawn. Pedestrians also found the streets and leves in no condition for safe and speedy locomotion.

The weather was cloudy and very cold, with light dashes of snow during the MIRCELLANGOUS. The Fannie Lewis brought up 670 bales of cotton for Evansville, and 370 bales for the east. She will commence loading to-day for Vicksburg.

The Mollie Moore and Yaeger arrived from St. Louis vesterday morning, much to the surprise of every one. They had a hard time getting out and reported the ice very heavy. At Powers' and Devil s Island they found four feet scant. The Motlie Moore, while trying to make a landing to fix her machinery near Grand Tower, struck a snag which tore a hole siz feet long in the side of her hull. She will have a side dock placed under her and have the damages repaired. No freight was damaged. She fills out her trip here. The Yeager was drawing four feet two inches and was aground at Powers' Island fortyeight hours.

The Commonwealth was detained until resterday afternoon when she left drawing 4) feet with two barges in tow having on herself and barges 800 tons freight. She also had a fair list of passengers.

The Chester left yesterday for Memphis with a good trip. The new steamer Billy Collins arrived out of the Ohio river with tow of barges. The towboat Powell which has been aground for sometime in the Ohlo river passed down with a tow vestereday.

The Arkansas Bill from Evansville brought down a full load, and returned with a load of cotton.

The Mary Davage is still at the wharf discharging her reshipping freight. A vain of pure anthracite coal five feet thick, has been lately found near the head of the Arkaness river.

The J. N. Kellogg left her barges at Devil's Island, to sound the channel, and while doing so she got aground, where she was detained some time. She had however got off when the Yeage left there, and had gone back to Devil's Island for her barges which she will try to bring to this port. E. A. Buriss, Capt. Dugan's diver, arrived here yesterday, and is making preparations to go to work raising the railroad
